

MIND IN THE MATTER

Announcing the 2015 SLaM Conference Call for Submissions for Programmed Workshops

Our conference will be:

Gritty and specific – Juicy and scholarly – Aesthetic and restorative

We build on the SLaM traditions of respecting and serving the expertise that founds and develops the Spirituality, Leadership and Management field.

In recognition of your expertise, we invite you to submit an expression of interest in contributing a workshop to the conference Programmed Strand, which will comprise five in-depth, participatory workshops.

Guidelines for Submissions

We request that the file containing your submission is presented without mention of your personal details, to ensure blind peer review.

We are accepting submissions through the website Easy Chair. When you go the site you will be asked to provide details about yourself, including your name and contact details (don't insert your biography and affiliations here; we want you to email it separately to our conference manager; details below).

You should have your submission ready as an attachment as follows (in pdf format):

File name = Submission title

Maximum of 500 words

- Your workshop should address a question you are facing about mindfulness that takes you to your learning edge in your practices of spirituality in leadership and management.
- Give an outline of the approach you will use to engage delegates in exploring this question with you for 70 minutes.

The Programmed Strand is highly selective – only five submissions can be accepted.

If your contribution is not selected for the programmed strand, the peer review may recommend you to contribute it to the Open Space strand.

Successful contributors to the Programmed Strand will be recognised for their commitment to the conference by being offered a 40% discount registration rate, if registering before 19th June.
